Verse I

Dear A&T, Dear A&T, a monument indeed, Around thy base with grateful hearts behold thy students kneel. We bless the power that gave thee birth to help us in our need, We'll ever strive while here on earth all loyalty to yield.

Refrain

With joy, with joy, dear A&T, thy students turn from thee To spread thy trophies year by year from Dare to Cherokee.

Verse II

Dear A&T, Dear A&T, the signet thou shalt be, Set by our great old commonwealth, proud boaster of the free She'd have the record of her worth on granite not inscribed
Nay, let the children of her birth proclaim it by their lives.

Verse III

Dear A&T, Dear A&T, henceforth our aim shall be, By precepts wise and deeds more sure to bless the State through thee; The arts of industry to wield against an idle foe
A harvest rich from ripened fields or what thy students sow.

WHAT IS FUSION??

Nicole:

"Fusion is the mixture of attitudes, opinions, and beliefs that brings us Aggies together as one."

Ricardo:

"Fusion is College Life, in college you learn the mixture between academics, student life, social life, and night life. Just like in Chemistry you have to learn how to balance the elements"

Jason:

"Fusion is the compilation of talents, attitudes, ethnicities, organizations, styles, and many other attributes within our university all wrapped together to create one thing, Aggie Pride."

Neidy:

"Fusion is the coming together of all different types of people here at A&T and uniting to make one staggering wave of Aggie Pride"

Lee:

"My Definition of Fusion is the compilation of two or more things working together to become something greater."

Kenneth:

"Fusion is bringing a variety of things together to make one amazing creation"

The Dedication

When we chose the theme FUSION for this publication, we could not find a group of persons who represented a cross-spectrum of what this year's annual would embody. No one really understands the dedication, time and patience it takes to create the captivating performances you provide every time the lights are on. The University Band Program represents the glue to all that is AGGIE PRIDE and continues to be the consistent experience for students, faculty, staff and alumni! The students know athletics play a huge role on a college campus, but for us they are an added benefit when the University Band Program is present. If no one has ever taken the time to recognize the work, blood, sweat, tears, late night hours and arduous practice schedule it takes to make the crowd go WILLDDDD!!! You continue to raise the standard.

Dr. Kenneth Graham Ruff is the Director of University Bands at North Carolina A&T State University. His Band duties include directing the Marching Band, the Symphonic and Concert bands and the Pep band. In addition, to these ensembles, he recently developed a flute choir, saxophone choir and a clarinet choir. He creates the drill designs for the marching band and is responsible for the organization and planning of the band program. Dr. Ruff entered the band program in 19??, under the leadership of Dr. Hodge. While under "Doc's" umbrella, Ruff aspired to section leader, head drum major and band director's assistant. It was only fitting that when Dr. Hodge retired, he personally campaigned for "Kenny Ruff" to be his replacement. Since taking the reins of 'The Machine' Dr. Ruff's servant leadership style permeates throughout the program with both students and staff, and the result is their commitment to work hard. Dr. Ruff expects greatness from everyone within the band program, and his open door policy along with his sincerity when interacting with his students seems to motivate them to excel. The band program is a monumental entity as it is the foremost ambassador for the university. Because of this, it is impressed upon the students and staff that they are always representing. Being an "Aggie" himself, Dr. Ruff is filled with "Pride" and he goes out week after week, pulling the performance level higher and higher. He collaborates with the students and staff, and incorporates their creativity in developing the elaborate shows presented on game day, as well as during the various competitions the band participates in throughout the marching season.

Dr. Kenneth Ruff & The University Band Program

Dr. Ruff has enjoyed many accomplishments while leading the BGMM, but the most memorable to date would be the announcement that he and his band members had been selected to participate in the 2012 Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade in New York City. There have been many memorable moments during my tenure as Director of Bands at NC A&T SU – from the thrill of victory at competitions to the satisfaction of seeing band members graduate and go on to become productive members in their profession and some even leading their own band programs. Being selected to participate in the 2012 Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade is truly an exciting opportunity. Words cannot express my sentiment upon receiving the invitation. I look forward to the A&T band members being able to share their talents with the people of NYC at this prestigious event. The parade has a legacy of outstanding performances and we are so very proud to become a part of that tradition, and will give the performance of a lifetime. This talented and hard-working group of students will represent NC A&T SU, the city of Greensboro and the state of North Carolina well in NYC in 2012."

Dr. Ruff considers the band and all of its members his family. "As a family we stick together, and as a member of the family you are expected to do your part, pull your weight, and exhibit greatness at all times. The rules of the family are discipline, dedication, commitment, preparation, teamwork, leadership, consistency and most of all, LOYALTY."

Dr. Ruff holds a bachelor's degree in Music Education and Master's Degree in Educational Administration and Supervision from North Carolina A&T State University. He also holds a Master's Degree in Music Education, a Specialist Degree in Education, and a Doctorate in Education from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. Prior to becoming the Director of University Bands at North Carolina A&T State University, Dr. Ruff served as an Assistant Principal at Eastern Guilford High School in the Guilford County School System. He also served as an Assistant Director of Bands for North Carolina A&T State University on a part-time basis. Ruff served as Director of Bands at Eastern Guilford High School and McLeansville Middle School and an Associate Director of Bands at John Motley Morehead High School and Holmes Middle School in Eden, North Carolina.

Dr. Ruff is a member of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia Professional Fraternity of Music, Kappa Kappa Psi National Honorary Band Fraternity, Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, Inc., and Tau Beta Sigma National Honorary Band Fraternity

STUDENT LIFE

The Intermixture of work and play.

New Student Orientation

New Student Orientation is the annual registration and advisement event for all new students to the university. During orientation students are given tours of the campus; given information about services the campus provides; experience various workshops and seminars; as well as get to know their fellow Aggies. Every student who has gone through an orientation session knows how beneficial it is towards making the transition into college much easier. As each new Aggie takes a step onto campus, they are always welcomed with a spirit filled, "Can I get a AGGIE PRIDE?"

During orientation students are given a brief overview of academic life as well as an opportunity to meet faculty members and register for classes.

During welcome week
students crowd together all over campus enjoying the festivities and entertainment.

WELCOME WEEK

Welcome week is one of the most exciting weeks of the school year. Mainly geared towards the freshmen class, welcome week is an entire week of events and entertainment put on by various student organizations to officially welcome everyone back to school and offer a brief, yet enjoyable time of relaxation before the semester really kicks off. Some of the events during welcome week 2010 was the organizational fair. A number of student organizations had displays showing the history behind their organization and what they were all about. Some members of the two modeling troupes here on campus put on a modeling show for the freshmen. There was also a cookout and a performance by the band. Welcome week has always been a loved tradition here at A&T and will continue to be for years to come.

COP

Council of Presidents

The Council of Presidents (COP) of North Carolina A&T State University will serve as the governing body of student organizations. It shall be the purpose of this council to:

- A. Provide an assembly of student organization presidents for the development and implementation of plans to keep the campus organizational life meaningful, wholesome, stimulating, productive and active.
- B. Be involved in learning and training experiences designed to enrich leadership skills.
- C. Represent the University whenever a cross section of student organizational life is invited in conference with A&T officials or to visit another university.

When appropriate, the Council invites organizations from other universities and colleges to participate in campus activities. OSD provides the means and the resources for academic, cultural, political, social and spiritual development to A&T students. This office coordinates the efforts of campus organizations mainly through the Council of Presidents (COP). OSD promotes purposeful involvement of students by: Fostering an atmosphere in which students share ideas freely and work collaboratively; Providing a safe and inclusive environment; Offering opportunities to develop leadership skills; Supporting the growth of student organizations; Provide opportunities for students to interface with city, state and national government officials; Promote student organizations as viable resources for the University and Greensboro Communities.

AGGIE PRIDE

To the left is the president of S.U.A.B., Mr. Rob Hill, making a few announcements at one of the events put on by S.U.A.B. To the right is the vice president, Ms. Kawanna Foster, who performed "YMCA" at Karaoke night.

The Student University Activities Board

The Student University Activities Board, formerly known as the Student Union Advisory Board, is one of the leading organizations here on campus dedicated to student life and entertainment. Housed in the heart of campus, the memorial student union, S.U.A.B. plans and executes various events all throughout the year designed to get students out of their dorms and interacting with one another. Some of the events S.U.A.B. put on this year included; Spaghetti and Spades, Step Afrika, Karoke Night, the Mr. S.U.A.B. Pageant, the Haunted House in the holland bowl; and a Back-to-School Block Party. "This year has been one of the most exciting years S.U.A.B. has ever had," said Mr. S.U.A.B. Jason Cameron. "The events that S.U.A.B. put on this year really brought the students out and made aggie pride seem alive again."

S.U.A.B.

PAN HELLENIC COUNCIL

The National Pan Hellenic Council of North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University is a coordinating organization with representatives from the A&T chapters of the following National organizations:

Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc. Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, Inc. Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc. Zeta Phi Beta Sorority, Inc. Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity, Inc. Sigma Gamma Rho Sorority, Inc. Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity, Inc. Omega Psi Phi Fraternity, Inc. Iota Phi Theta Fraternity, Inc.

Membership of the NPHC is restricted to representatives elected by each of the organizations which comprise the National Pan-Hellenic Council. The purpose of the National Pan Hellenic Council is:

1. To maintain a high level of Greek life and inter-fraternal relationship within the University.
2. To encourage student leadership and personal development.
3. To cooperate with University officials in the effort to maintain high social and scholastic standards throughout the University.
4. To serve as a forum for the discussion of questions of mutual interest and concern to the University, fraternities and sororities.

The National Pan-Hellenic Council has its adopted by-laws.

The A&T Fair

51st Annual Sit-In Breakfast

On February 1st, 1960, four young men from North Carolina A&T State University held a sit-in protest at a local lunch counter that only served whites. Ezell Blair Jr., Franklin McCain, Joseph McNeil, and David Richmond sat down so the world could stand up against inequality across the world. Every year, a breakfast is held in their honor here on campus. This year's keynote speaker was SGA president Wayne Kimball.

FEBRUARY 1

Student Government Association

The Authorities of North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University, having confidence in the ability, character and judgment of the students and believing that participation by them in the affairs of the University Community will be mutually helpful and valuable, have given authority to them to organize the Student Government Association and to adopt the Constitution and By-Laws. Through the structures provided by the University and subject to policies established by the responsible boards and officials of the University, students assist the faculty and administrative officers in the development of programs and policies in matters affecting academic question, student discipline and the general welfare of the A&T Community.

Residence Hall Association

The Residence Hall Association (RHA) is a student leadership organization that represents various residence halls, which house the on campus student population. The purpose of the Residence Hall Association is to foster a sense of community within and between the residence halls as well as to promote the overall residence hall experience within a living and learning community. The goal and purpose of the Residence Hall Association is to also provide information, programs and resources for residence hall students. RHA strives to give each on campus resident a voice within the department of Housing and Residence Life as well as a voice within university administration. In its effort to give each on campus student a voice, RHA emphasizes and promotes leadership and educational opportunities in the residence halls, effective communication within and between the residence halls and Housing and Residence Life, academic excellence for all residential students, and a sense of self respect for all individuals that reside within the on campus living community.

RHA works diligently to make sure that students are aware of university/departmental policies and procedures as well as, self governance within the residence halls. RHA believes that all students should have an understanding of the importance of a general appreciation for cultural and social diversity, as well as social responsibility and social awareness through educational and community service opportunities. RHA will also serve as a representative body for students living within the on campus community in matters concerning Residence Life policies and procedures, residential facilities, food services, and programming efforts within the residence halls and throughout campus.

HOMECOMING

A blend between the traditional and contemporary Aggie life.

Blue & Gold Soccer Fest

By: Necole Jackson, A&T Register Reporter

The Greatest Homecoming on Earth (GHOE) was kicked off with the first annual Blue and Gold Soccer Fest against the University of North Carolina Greensboro (UNCG) Saturday Oct. 2, starting at 3 p.m.

A&T's soccer club won 7-2 against UNCG's soccer team, which both teams played with males and females.

Aggies started off with the upper hand with a 2-1 score. By half time, A&T had the lead of 3-2 adding to the excitement. The boys and girls ran aggressively down the field kicking goals and bouncing the ball off of their heads.

After halftime, there was an altercation between a Spartan tripping an Aggie. Another Aggie shoved the Spartan angrily, but it was quickly resolved and the game continued. With the win in the end, Aggies were excited and ready to continue the homecoming activities.

The crowd gathered together to show their support while dancing to music played by DJ World Premier, a student at A&T. Other than watching the game, students threw footballs, kicked soccer balls and played with dogs on the sideline.

"This was a great turn out," said Nicole McEwan, a sophomore graphic communication systems major from Queens, NY. "I come and support the team for their practices and this crowd will be very encouraging for them. Hopefully, they will become an official team."

ABT Soccer Club

Blue & Gold Soccer Fest

The soccer club usually practices in the Holland Bowl led by president/captain David Tarekgn, a junior from Washington, D.C.

"We fight with flag football to practice three times a week," said Tarekgn. "Even though we eventually get the practice, it was still hard to play on a official soccer field because we don't have one, but we kept a positive attitude. Hopefully, this game will gain us some exposure, because a lot of the students don't know about us."

The Soccer Fest was sponsored by the Student Government Association (SGA) from A&T and UNCG. The idea of kicking off GHOE a day early was from our SGA President Wayne Kimball.

"I met Katie Marshall, the SGA president for UNCG, over the summer and suggested that we should do an event involving both schools," said Kimball. "We wanted to do something more diverse and get more students involved with the homecoming experience. I want to bring out the total experience which I talked about when I ran last year."

Marshall was happy about the connections between the schools. She said that they cancelled their previous soccer game to play A&T. Starting A&T's homecoming at UNCG was a great way to show Aggie and Spartan pride.

This is the first of many soccer games to come for GHOE. "Next year, hopefully we can play at stadium to make it bigger and better," said Kimball. "We want to open it up to the public and make this a family event. Other than that, it was a great turn out." ■

Gospel Show

By: Shequia Cole, A&T Register Reporter

A&T's Greatest Homecoming On Earth continued Sunday, October 3, 2010, with the gospel show featuring the award-winning A&T Fellowship Gospel Choir and Kurt Carr with the Kurt Carr Singers. A&T's Gospel Choir opened the show in Harrison Auditorium. The choir wore matching black "I love Africa," shirts and khaki pants. They entertained the crowd with loud voices, drums, bass guitars and saxophones. The Gospel Choir followed through with its signature emotion-filled presentation of songs. There was some dancing and choreography from the choir as well as praise dancers and mime-style dancers. Themes the gospel choir touched on were the resuscitation of Gods people and the need to trust God. They ended with a strong and active rendition of "Jesus is my help." Continuing the gospel choirs' last performance, MC Joseph Level got the audience involved by going from section to section in the auditorium having the audience sing "Jesus is my help." Level was also one of the MC's lat the gospel show last year.

He opened up to the audience about his family life and his career in the radio industry. He became very emotional as he revealed that he would no longer be on the radio and that he would be leaving the Greensboro area. He entertained the audience by dancing, telling jokes and imitating old church choir concerts. Level went on to say that despite Winston-Salem State University and NC Central Universities competitiveness with A&T, there is no homecoming like A&T's homecoming. Headliner Kurt Carr and his Kurt Carr singers began their performance with the famous song written by Carr "The Presence of the Lord is here." Carr put on a show from the moment he entered the stage dancing, directing and singing. The seven Kurt Carr singers sang an array of songs as directed by Carr. They also each sang a solo which displayed their vocal abilities. Each of them sang various ranges, tones, pitches and octaves. Often Carr ordered the audience to slap hands with someone or to take their neighbor by the hand while saying various insightful phrases. Carr said numerous times that he hadn't come to entertain or give a show but that he came to "set the atmosphere or a blessing." He even asked that the lights in the auditorium be turned up so he could see the crowd. "God brought me out of darkness," said Carr.

He involved the audience by asking if there were any Aggies in the room, which led to an "Aggie pride" chant. Following the chant, Carr humorously responded saying, "What's an Aggie?" In addition to all the other elements that made the gospel show a memorable one, Carr "adopted" everyone in the crowd as his "cousins," but made sure to humorously mention that he would not be helping with anyone's book costs. Carr didn't leave without advising students to "not get an in partying." He even proclaimed that there were future doctors, politicians, and professionals in the room. Pertenia Hay a junior spanish education major said she really enjoyed the show. "I wasn't a fan of Kurt Carr before but I think I am now," she said.

Pep Rally

By Sharelle M. Burt

H-O-M-E-C-O-M-I-N-G! Its Homecoming yall!

North Carolina A&T State University Homecoming 2010 has finally arrived. On Monday, October 4, 2010, the Pep Rally kicked off a week full of homecoming events and activities for students, faculty, alumni and friends. As Corbett Fitness Center filled up, hosts Mr. A&T, Todd Porter and SGA Vice President of External Affairs, Christian Robinson, started to get the crowd hype.

To start off the night, SGA President Wayne Kimball said a prayer followed by the singing of the National Anthem. Once all that was out of the way, "the party" started. While DJ Red October played some tunes, the hosts started to shout out numerous hometowns just to see who was in the building. From the 336 to the 718, Aggies were definitely in the house.

Next up was a tribute to Aggie Athletics. All the athletics teams were represented, especially the Aggie Football team who needed all the support they could get, as they prepared to take on the Bears of Morgan State University. Team captain Enoch Cohen said it best, "We want all of you to come out and support us. We can't do it without you."

Pep Rally

Pep Rally wouldn't be Pep Rally without our beloved campus Greek organizations. The Greek Council came out to join us and as the DJ continued to play the tunes, the Greeks definitely showed us that they are ready for the Homecoming festivities.

As time went on, the crowd started to become anxious for the performance of the Blue and Gold Marching Machine. And then the time came. The Marching Machine strolled their way into Corbett the way that only they can do it. Lead by the drum majors and the beautiful ladies of Golden Delight, their music reminded us of the meaning of Aggie Pride and why Homecoming is so important to A&T.

"Aggie Pride is something that will forever be in our hearts. Regardless of where we go in life, its events like this that remind us that A&T is our home," senior Samitra Little said.

With an event like this being so "live" on the first night of Homecoming, we can just imagine what's in store for us for the rest of the week.

Comedy Show

By Sharelle M. Burt

"At least we don't have to wait in the rain this year to get in," said an eager Aggie waiting to get into Corbett Fitness Center. The line was wrapped around the building as hundreds of Aggies, alumni, friends and family waited to get the best seat in the house to watch the 2010 North Carolina A&T Homecoming Comedy Show.

The Aggies couldn't have asked for better weather. On the bright and sunny Tuesday afternoon, everyone wondered who would be the funniest comedian of the night. This year's show featured comedians Michael Blackson, Luenell and Bruce Bruce. It wasn't long before Corbett was packed to capacity and everyone was ready to laugh. Our host for the evening was A&T's own DeMar Rankin, but his stage name is "osamabindrunkin" and boy was he funny! He definitely kept the crowd in tears until the first comedian, Michael Blackson, took over.

Blackson did a great job at keeping Corbett in tears with his comedy. Telling jokes about his journey from Africa to America and about the African male "anatomy" had the crowd's attention. Of course he hit us with his classic lines from the classic comedy "Next Friday" and that always keeps people laughing. When talking with Blackson, you could tell that he has a serious side as well. "I've been to many schools to perform but I got serious, serious love when I came here," Blackson said. "I'm not so old so I can relate to you guys and you guys can relate to me. That's why I tell the jokes I tell."

Comedy Show

Next to perform was funny woman Luenell. "Ya'll better act like I'm about to make ya'll laugh," said Luenell as she walked on to stage. I guess the Aggie crowd wasn't loud enough but she definitely got the crowd loud enough all within the next 5 minutes. With her jokes about her daughter and her Mexican boyfriend, we were definitely not ready for Luenell to leave the stage. As I was talking to the Arkansas native, she stated that it felt good to be invited back to A&T. Because she was invited back, she knows that we support her and give her love and that's what keeps her going. She ended our conversation by asking me where the nicest bar was in Greensboro.

Our final laughs for the night came from veteran comedian Bruce Bruce. We knew we were in for a treat. It was clear to see that Bruce was a family man. Most of his jokes surrounded around his mother, children, ex's and that he is comfortable with his weight, joking about it for a majority of the night. He then did the unthinkable: picked on people in the audience. From the "top flight security guards" at our school to a student that had on a straw hat, he knew how to crack on people and not make them cry. He even made fun of the "Dawgs" of Omega Psi Phi Fraternity, Inc. and the "Pretty Boys" of Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity, Inc. even though his son is a member of the fraternity. "I love performing at college events," the Atlanta native stated. "I guess it is because I have two children in college so they tell me about all the crazy things that go on and I just use it to my advantage. It's a lot of fun and ya'll know its true, don't you?" I couldn't agree more.

The night was finally over and another Homecoming Comedy Show has come and gone. It's always sad to see the comedians go but attending such an amazing school like A&T, Aggies know that won't be the last time we see them. What other school could possibly show them more love than we do? ■

Coronation

By: Necole Jackson, A&T Register Reporter

On Thursday, Oct. 07, The Greatest Homecoming on Earth (GHOE) continued with the coronation of Mister and Miss North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University in Corbett Sports Center.

With the theme Diamonds are Forever, Todd Porter and Carla Saunders were crowned king and queen for everyone to see.

Coming into Corbett, guest were seated on the stands while listening to jazz music. The floor was filled with rocks and on the center of the stage stood a huge life-like diamond. When the lights were darkened, the backdrop full of stars lit up and set the mood for the night.

"I loved how everything was put together," said Roxanne Bullock, a junior bio-engineering major from Raleigh, N.C. "The diamond added pizzazz and looked very tasteful. The elegance of everything kept me interested."

The Mister and Mistress of Ceremony were Busta Brown and Emilee Christopher. After introducing the special guest seated on stage, our 2009-2010 Mister and Miss NC A&T, Austin James and Ngozi Opara, graced everyone with their final walk.

Coronation

Keeping with the theme, the main plot of the night was finding the diamond which was stolen out of the Student Government Association (SGA) office. A video showed Porter becoming a detective trying to solve the clues, given by the organizational king and queens, to find the missing diamond. The Academic Honor Societies, Hometown Organizations, Residence Hall Association, Special Interest Groups, and the Greek Life Organizations were introduced with choreography and seated. "All the hard work paid off," said Ashley Scotland, a junior architectural engineering major, serving as Miss Phi Beta Sigma. "We practiced all night and I am glad that everyone remembered their entrance. It put all of us kings and queens in a good mood that we did good and made us enjoy the evening better."

The class king and queens then proceeded with their entrance and was seated on the stage, followed by the royal court attendants. After everyone was seated, Porter came out and took his walk while still searching for the missing diamond. Saunders, representing the diamond, was found and made a grand entrance while coming out the life-like diamond on the stage. Saunders took her walk and they were soon crowned by James and Opara. After their royal addresses, Saunders was given a tribute by Ebony Magazine. She was one of the top ten queens to be featured in the 2010 Ebony/Jet Magazine Top Queens of Historically Black College or University (HBCU). The coronation ended with tributes by guests and closing remarks.

This was the second crowning of Mr. A&T. "When they first proposed the idea of having a Mr. A&T, I didn't want it because being alumni, I wanted to keep with the tradition," said Dean Ralph Brown, the former Assistant Dean of Student Development. Seeing now how it was created by the students and how it gets more students involved, I think it is a success."

The main goal of this year's coronation was attract more students. "We wanted to get more students involved with the coronation experience," said Brown. "Carla saw what the former queens did before, and stepped it up to another level. This is the most people we have ever had." ■

Step Show

By Sharelle M. Burt

Its always sad when Homecoming is close to coming to an end but we know that Homecoming would be nothing without our beloved Greeks stomping it out.

On Friday, October 9th, students, friends and alumni packed Greensboro Coliseum for the 2010 North Carolina A&T State University Homecoming Step Show. This year's show featured defending champions, the Alpha Phi chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha Sorority, Inc. and the Eta Chapter of Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity, Inc. Zula Zeta Chapter of Iota Phi Theta Fraternity, Inc., Zeta Alpha Chapter of Zeta Phi Beta Sorority, Inc., Alpha Mu Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc. and the Alpha Nu Chapter of Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity, Inc.

Each sorority and fraternity had different and creative themes. First up was the "Pretty Girls" of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc. trying to step their way out of the "Psyck Ward." Dressed and straight jackets and their famous curls, the ladies definitely wanted to show the crowd that they aren't the group to mess with. Next up were the men of Iota Phi Theta Fraternity, Inc starring in their own version of the film "The Wood." Stepping out in silk brown vests, the lotas made sure that they stepped their way into the spotlight.

The Devastating Divas of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc., or shall we say the cast of "First 48" showed the crowd that they know how to use their detective skills to win the title and the ladies of Zeta Phi Beta Sorority, Inc. definitely took us all to the party with them as they stepped their way into the characters of the 90's sitcom "Living Single." The defending champs for 5 years straight, the Eta chapter of Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity, Inc., took us on a journey to the world of Avatar so we could see that they still have skills regardless if they are human or not.

For years now, the men of Omega Psi Phi Fraternity, Inc., Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, Inc., Iota Phi Theta Fraternity, Inc. and Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity, Inc. were the ones that battled it out for title of "step masters" of the A&T Step Show. This year, all that changed. The Nupes are back! The "Pretty Boys" of Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity, Inc. returned to the stage after a 5 year hiatus. Showing us they are more than "pretty," the Nupes came extra hard this year when they stepped into character of box office hit "Takers." While beating their "kanes" the crowd just knew they were there to steal the show.

The time had come to announce the winners and the crowd was filled with anticipation. The results were in: the Alpha Mu Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta, Inc. and for the fifth straight win, the Eta Chapter of Phi Beta Sigma, Incorporated.

Homecoming Parade

By: Jason Cameron, Ayantee Copy Editor

Every year students and alumni return to A&T during homecoming week to enjoy and celebrate the very essence of what it means to be an Aggie. The Homecoming Parade takes place every Saturday morning and has become a cherished tradition. As early as it starts, you wouldn't expect such a turn out. However, hours before the parade begins, aggies and members of the greater Greensboro community line the streets, anxiously awaiting to greet the parade participants. Of course the parade wouldn't be the same without the awesome sound of the marching band. Together, organizations, faculty, staff and friends stroll the streets of Greensboro, displaying their aggie pride for all to see.

Small children love to come out every year and catch candy being thrown from various floats in the parade. Many outside organizations and groups join the aggie family in the parade as well; dancing, marching, or simply going along for the ride.

"My family and I absolutely love to come out every year and see the parade before we head over to the stadium for the game," said aggie alum Michelle Colstan.

With all of the deep history and pride that dwells within the foundation of this sacred university, the homecoming parade plays a crucial role in preserving that rich history and legacy. Aggie pride fuels the march, and the homecoming parade will continue to be a favorite in the future aggie homecoming celebrations. ■

Homecoming Game

By: Prince Grimes, A&T Register Sports Editor

Saturday's 27-14 loss to Morgan State marked the seventh straight homecoming loss for the North Carolina A&T football team. Once again the winless Aggies (0-6, 0-3 MEAC) were plagued by turnovers in versatile sophomore Ricky Lewis' first career start at quarterback. "Tough loss, homecoming loss; still searching for a victory" said head coach Alonzo Lee. "Turnovers and miscues bit us pretty good." Their first drive of the game began promising however.

The Aggies marched into Morgan State territory with the help of a 31-yard run from Mike Mayhew. The drive unfortunately came to an end on a 3rd-and-1 from MSU's 24-yard-line when Lee put Shelton Morgan in at quarterback and he threw an interception. The Bears turned that mistake into points with a 10-play, 77-yard drive capped off with a 17-yard touchdown run by their first time starting quarterback, redshirt freshman Delonte Williams. The extra point was missed but a fumble by Lewis on the first play of the Aggies next possession gave MSU the ball back at the A&T 27. It was his first of two fumbles.

"I noticed that college football is way faster than high school football," said Lewis. "I had fun, but I didn't leave it all out on the field. I had two turnovers." Two plays later Williams ran in his second of three rushing touchdowns from 10 yards out. The Aggies found themselves down 12-0 in the first quarter after the Bears failed on a two-point attempt. A solid running game to begin the second quarter led the Aggies down to the Bears 17-yard line.

Morgan completed a touchdown pass to Devon Stewart to pull the Aggies closer at 12-7. Morgan State proved to be too much for the Aggies however, scoring on each of their next two possessions. The Aggies scored their only other touchdown of the game in between those two scores on a 90-yard kickoff return by Justin Ferrell. It was the fourth kickoff return for a touchdown this year for the Aggies and the third by Ferrell who set a school record.

The 27-14 halftime score would hold up for the remainder of the game. A bruising rushing attack helped Morgan control time of possession as they ran for a total of 261 yards on the game, averaging 5-yards per carry. The Aggies will try to avoid losing their tenth consecutive game dating back to last season on Saturday when they play against Delaware State. ■

Concert

By: Jason Cameron, Ayantee Copy Editor

The Homecoming Concert is one of the most anticipated events of the entire homecoming celebration. Students, alumni, and members of the community purchase their tickets weeks before the show, trying to secure the seat closest to the stage. This year's concert was sure to bring one of the biggest crowds because the headliner of the concert was hip-hop sensation Drake. Fans began to arrive at the Greensboro Coliseum hours before the event, hoping to avoid traffic. Once inside, everyone could hardly breathe as they waited for the show to begin. Before Drake took the stage, other celebrity performers such as J. Cole, Chrisette Michelle, Rick Ross, and P.Diddy performed for the crowd, bringing the energy in the building to an all-time high.

Finally, fans were ready to see Drake, and he gave them exactly what they were waiting for. "I think the concert was great," stated junior marketing major Sharon Martin. "All of the artists were great and I just think Drake is amazing."

"Once again, A&T has produced yet another successful, entertaining, and amazing homecoming concert," said senior music major Anthony Cole.

Now, students and fans from all around sit and patiently wait to hear who will be gracing the stage next year and making another Aggie Homecoming go down in history as the Greatest Homecoming On Earth. ■

SPORTS

The merging of blood, sweat, and tears.

When crowds fill the stands at an A&T game, they expect a certain atmosphere. Fans want to feel the excitement of the game as they cheer on the team. Cheerleaders have always been a major catalyst in setting the atmosphere at games across the world. However, no team does it quite like our very own Aggie Spirit Program. This hard-working, talented group of individuals show up to every game ready to provide an atmosphere all Aggies are sure to enjoy.

The Aggie Cheerleading Squad just recently changed from two squads; the gold squad and the blue squad to one unified group, dedicated to upholding the excellence set in the history of this award-winning squad. You may think cheerleading is an easy task, but with weight training twice a week, practicing for two hours everyday and traveling with the football team for away games can really be a challenging task; nevertheless, the members of the Aggie Cheerleading Squad do an outstanding job at maintaining a positive spirit and tons of Aggie Pride.

As cheerleaders, we try our best to keep the crowd as lively as possible," said junior chemical engineering major Jenny McClendon. The Aggie Cheerleading Squad has won all of the categories participated in during the MEAC Tournament for the past four years. "Cheering is more than a sport," said McClendon, "it's a lifestyle."

CHEERLEADING

The 2010-2011 Aggie football season continued in it's tradition of keeping fans on the edge of their bleachers filled with various emotions. One of the more prominent emotions running through everyone's heart this season was hope. Students and Alumni from all over the country fill the Aggie Stadium and other stadiums each and every year and the positive engergy and cheer's recieved from the fans seems to ignite an extra boost of energy into the players as they take the field, hoping not to let the fans down and to bring home another Aggie victory. This season was filled with it's ups and downs, but the Aggies still held on to every ounce of hope they could find. Finally there was light at the end of the tunnel. After finally having a victory under their belts for the season, fans, and players were overwhelmed with aggie pride. As the season continued, the players fought their hardest, and the dedicated, loyal aggie fans continued to show support and love.

"Whether the team wins or looses, it's always fun to come out and fellowship with my aggie family and cheer the team on," said freshmen animal science major Timothy Exum. Aggies currently attending classes and alumni from across the world will never stop coming out and supporting the team because win or loose, the aggie pride in all of us will never die.

FOOTBALL

In 1961, the first mens swimming team was formed here at North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University. After a decline in number, and ultimately an elimination of the team all together, the women's team was formed in 1997 under the leadership of Ms. Denise Adams. Since then, the womens swimming team has backstroked their way through practices, freestyled their way through competitions, and breaststroked their way through the years to bringing them to where they are today.

Ms. Shawn Hendrix, currently coaching the team, has been with the team since May of 1999. "The team has become like a family to me, and at times that can be a good and a bad thing. Nevertheless, we are all constantly growing and I look forward the ladies blooming, and maturing, and getting stronger in the years to come," said coach Hendrix.

This past season was coach Hendrix's 13th season with the team. "This has been our largest recruiting year, with 6 of the 11 ladies on the team being freshmen," said Hendrix. "This season was more of a transition season; with so many of the girls being new to the team and freshmen. The growth this year was commendable, and 4 of our ladies have received awards for their academic achievements. Overall, the team is looking forward to a better season now that they know what to expect."

Maybe one day the mens team will make a comeback, but until then, the womens team will hold it down and continue to grow and prosper in the family of aggie athletics.

Hard work and dedication are two words the ladies of the North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University's volleyball team are familiar with. The 2010-2011 season for these ladies was filled with it's highs and lows; nevertheless, the team stood together and played every match with spirit and hope. The ladies finished the season at 2-31. The team consisted of 9 freshmen this season. Now that those freshmen have had a year of experience on the court and in the classroom, next year is sure to be above and beyond what anyone could imagine.

Outside of their practices and matches, the volleyball team always exemplified leadership and academic excellence. The team realizes that other females on campus are watching them and as student athletes, they play a major role in influencing the behavior of other females on campus.

In honor of National Breast Cancer Awareness Month, the ladies of the NC A&T volleyball team held their THINK PINK match against Bethune-Cookman. The ladies even used a pink volleyball during the match and wore pink socks. "I think that bringing awareness to other females about getting regular check-ups for breast cancer is amazing and I really applaude the volleyball team for their efforts," stated junior nursing major Kathy McDonnell.

VOLLEYBALL

The ladies of the North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University's women's basketball team are all too familiar with terms like "championship" and "victory." These outstanding women are known for winning; so when the 2010-2011 season began, they expected nothing different. Head coach Patricia Cage-Bibbs encouraged the ladies all season long to play hard and work towards an amazing season. The ladies realized that each game counts, and losing is not an option. With an awesome defense and unstoppable offense, the lady aggies soared through the season with impressive leads in several games.

Closing out the season with a remarkable 91-63 win over Norfolk State and landing a spot in the MEAC Tournament was no surprise to the team. Coach Cage-Bibbs knew the ladies would go all the way and so did everyone here in aggeland. "Every season the ladies never seem to let us down," said freshmen theater major Jeannette Dalton, "and I look forward to watching the ladies to continue in their tradition of winning for as long as I'm here."

WOMEN'S

Just like their female counterparts, the North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University's men's basketball team displayed another great season. The team continues to raise the bar for all male athletes each and every season. This season, senior Thomas Coleman was selected to compete in the 8th Annual Historical Black College All-Star Classic. It comes as no surprise that one of our very own aggies was chosen to participate in such a prestigious event.

The Black College All-Star Classic features players from the MEAC, SWAC, SIAC and CIAA who compete against each other. Coleman was among 24 seniors playing in front of NBA and international scouts. This opportunity is a huge chance for players to showcase their skills and athletic abilities.

Even though the team didn't not win the MEAC championship, we congratulate them on their individual accomplishments and team spirit as a whole. Everyone in aggie land can continue to expect nothing but the best from our men's basketball team.

BASKETBALL

The 2010-2011 North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University's softball team was mostly filled with freshmen and sophomores. However, they did not let this seemingly disadvantage keep them from giving each and every game their all. Head Coach Mamie Jones made sure the ladies played hard and never gave up. In the beginning of the season, home-runs seemed to be the name of the game for a few of the ladies; nevertheless, the most ladies ended the season with some impressive stats.

When the NC A&T softball team was invited to the Buccaneer Softball Challenge held at East Tennessee State University, they defeated their conference rivals, South Carolina State University, ending the game with 9-3.

"I enjoy coming out and watching the ladies play," said alumnist Jackie Peterson. "I wish more of the student body would come out to the games. The ladies play an awesome game, and I look forward to coming out with my children and husband to watch all aggie athletics."

AGGIE

The 2010-2011 season started of strong for the men of the North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University's baseball team. Pulling in numerous wins made the team proud and kept the fans wanting more. Keith Shumate, the head coach for the team, keeps the guys up on their feet during practices, preparing them to give their best performance during each game.

During the games, the men of the NC A&T baseball team displayed incredible team work and inspired each other to fight as hard as they could for the win. Especially when they played against Appalachian State University. The aggies had an amazing boost during the sixth inning, taking the lead over Appalachian State. Even though Appalachian State made a comeback and took the win, our guys still played an awesome game, which in turn kept the spirit of aggie pride alive on the field as they played.

The NC A&T baseball team, along with all aggie athletics, play a major role in keeping the spirit of aggie pride alive in all of us. Whether on or off the field, the athletes who play for A&T instill a sense of competitiveness in us all. The men of the NC A&T baseball team exemplify the very essence of aggie pride during each and every game. So, win or lose, the pride that resides in every true aggie makes us all victorious.

BASEBALL

There's no other track and field team quite like our very own here at North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University. The 2010-2011 track and field season began beautifully for the team as they made their way to Wake Forest University. Even the freshmen on the team made impressive qualifying times.

It's no wonder why our athletes show up to games around the state and country and always represent to the fullest; it's the aggie pride that lies deep within our aggie athletics that propels each team towards success. Even all the way down at the University of Florida, our track and field team did an outstanding job at the Florida Relays. The Florida Relays is known around the country as one of the most notable meets in the country. This meet features some of the best teams from around the country; therefore it's only fitting that the men and women of the NC A&T track and field team played a part in this respected occasion.

Spring semester can prove to be the hardest for most students. Nevertheless, the team stayed focused and produced quality performances on and off the field. "I used to run track in high school and watching our team here at A&T makes me want to run again," stated freshmen chemical engineering major Marcus Blackwell. Even though the team suffered from a terrible loss at the beginning of the school year, they still managed to perform a great season and we know that they will continue to produce excellence for years to come.

To some, taking a trip to to local bowling alley for a few games is a way to pass the time, but for the young women on the North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University Bowling Team, it's a way of life. These young women have spent countless hours practicing, traveling at least twice a month for whole weekends, competing against other teams, all while maintaining academic excellence.

Sarah Taylor, senior liberal studies major, is captain of the team this year and has been a member since her freshmen year. "Being that we are a much smaller team compared to other sports here on campus, the chemistry between the team is very important to our performance. We have our ups and downs, but we try our best to make sure we are all on the same page, which helps us athletically and academically."

Taylor scored her career high this season, bowling a game of 257.

The team took this season as a learning experience, and are looking forward to bigger and brighter things in the future. "Hopefully the team will make it to the MEAC championship conference within the next few years," stated Taylor.

North Carolina A&T State University Faculty Senate

The A&T Faculty Senate is the representative body through which the faculty participate in University affairs and shared governance. Through committees and a democratically elected legislative body it promulgates policies and regulations regarding the general educational objectives of A&T.

The Senate also considers, advises, and recommends policies and procedures in other matters which concern the general welfare of the faculty including criteria for faculty appointment, dismissal, promotions, tenure, and retirement; criteria for the selection of the chief academic officer and other campus administrative officers; criteria; priorities for the University budget; priorities for the University development plan; and changes in physical facilities.

The Faculty Senate may consider, advise, and recommend on proposed policies regarding student life, rights, and responsibilities.

AGC is a recognized departmental organization representing the School of Technology in the Construction Management department. We target students who share a keen interest in entering the industry of building technology and construction management. Our primary focus, as an organization, is to bridge the gap between general classroom settings and the real life work environment which awaits us. We accomplish our goals by positioning our students to grasp every opportunity possible. Everyone knows that in construction, networking is considered a power tool. Thus we work hard to solicit leading professionals in the industry to come to our, on campus, events accessible to all students. We bring them to our programs and classrooms.

Associated General Contractors

Student Chapter

with the intention of speaking to our students, sharing valuable information, giving students insight on industry demands and expectations. We offer our members the privilege to come and meet with a variety of different companies during information sessions, mock interviews, seminars, workshops and more. AGC hosts multiple programs and events throughout the year with the intent of preparing students to become more competitive in their fields. AGC members are sought out throughout the industry, being linked to a nationally recognized, premier networking organization has its advantages for the students. Companies from all over, endorse and support the organization by inviting our students to important events, sponsoring programs and working directly with our students by means of internships or shadowing experiences. Furthermore, we take a tradition to volunteer and get involved in the community to which we live. We feel that it is important to give back to the community and become more involved with the people who make up the community. AGC is a hard work organization that values and promotes academic excellence and achievement. We are taking the time to prepare students into future leaders in the industry and in the community.

APO

Alpha Phi Omega National Service Fraternity was founded on December 16, 1925 on the campus of Lafayette College in Easton, Pennsylvania. Alpha Phi Omega was founded to assemble college students in a National Fraternity in the fellowship of the principles of Boy Scouts of America.

On February 13, 1953, the Kappa Psi Chapter of Alpha Phi Omega was chartered on the illustrious campus of North Carolina A&T State University. Since then, the Kappa Psi chapter has been striving to remain the premier service organization on the campus and is dedicated to developing leadership, promoting friendship, and providing service to humanity.

Alpha Phi Omega National Service Fraternity

Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity Inc.

Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity was founded at Howard University in Washington, D.C., January 9, 1914, by three young African-American male students. The founders, Honorable A. Langston Taylor, Honorable Leonard F. Morse, and Honorable Charles I. Brown, wanted to organize a Greek letter fraternity that would truly exemplify the ideals of brotherhood, scholarship, and service.

The founders deeply wished to create an organization that viewed itself as "a part of" the general community rather than "apart from" the general community. They believed that each potential member should be judged by his own merits, rather than his family background or affluence, without regard to race, nationality, skin, tone, or texture of hair. They desired for their fraternity to exist as part of an even greater brotherhood which would be devoted to the "inclusive we" rather than the "exclusive we."

From its inception, the founders also conceived Phi Beta Sigma as a mechanism to deliver services to the general community was mirrored in the Fraternity's motto, "Culture for Service, Service for Humanity."

rather than gaining skills to be utilized exclusively for themselves and their immediate families, they held a deep conviction that they should return their newly acquired skills to the communities from which they had come. This deep conviction brother Abraham McCartney Walker, the first initiate of Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity, and in 1914, "I believe in all that Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity represents, and I will defend and defend it, even against the world." One year later, Eta Chapter was chartered at what is now North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University.

The Eta Chapter was chartered at North Carolina A&T State University in March 1915 by Dr. William Savage, to further the cause of Sigma in Greensboro, N.C. As the first and oldest chapter of any Greek organization at A&T, as well as the southeastern region, Eta Chapter continues to uplift the national ideals of Phi Beta Sigma on campus and in the Greensboro Community.

SPECIAL FEATURES

By: Jason Cameron, Ayantee Copy Editor

Our Queen, Miss. North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University, Carla Janell Saunders, was selected amongst a pool of applicants to be featured in the September 2010 edition of Ebony Magazine. The spread shined a light on HBCU Queens and their accomplishments. I had a moment to sit down with Carla and get her view on the entire experience.

Q. How did you feel when you first heard the news that you were going to be featured with 10 other HBCU Queens in Ebony Magazine?

A. "The feeling was overwhelming. I was more so happy that my school was able to be represented. Anything that has to do with honoring HBCU's, A&T has to be there."

Q. How did you find out about the opportunity?

A. "I heard other Queens talking about it, so I were and found out more information. Each Queen who entered the competition had to submit a video, a picture, and answer a few questions. Only 10 Queens were chosen out of the 28 that entered."

Q. How was the experience?

A. "The experience was phenomenal. All of the finalist were flown out to Atlanta for a day of glory. Derek Blanks was the photographer for the photo shoot. He's worked with T.I., Monique, and the Atlanta Housewives. The overall experience was extremely rewarding."

Q. How has this experience changed your life?

A. "The love and support I felt from my aggie family was greatly appreciated. Throughout the entire experience it made me feel good knowing that I was able to be an ambassador for the university. After the magazine was released in September, I received a letter from a man in prison who had read the article and was inspired. All of the Queens had to choose a word to describe them, and I chose "effervescent." The guy in prison said that my word stuck out to him and I was a beacon of light for him during these dark times. I'm glad that God was able to use me to touch someone else's life."

Stroll Off

Lycerum Series

The Lyceum Series at North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University is dedicated to bringing the most provocative, culturally diverse programming to the university and the surrounding community. The content is to bring world class programs to students, faculty, staff, and community audiences to venues of entertainment that are beyond the normal rich array of educational programs offered at A&T, and perpetuate a world view of arts and humanities.

The 2010-2011 Lyceum Series was titled, "Taking Us Back To Our Roots." Some of the events consisted of celebrity appearances, dance teams, musicians, and author's. Actress Tasha Smith was one of the celebrities that visited A&T and shared her inspirational story with those who came out to see her. "Forces of Nature" dance theatre also visited the campus and utilized a unique blend of performing arts, which included contemporary modern dance, traditional west african dance, ballet, house, and hip-hop forms as well as live and recorded music and martial arts.

The Lyceum committee has worked very hard to bring these programs to the aggie community and we look forward to being exposed to these culturally diverse productions each and every year. Being able to experience what the lyceum series offers is indeed an learning advantage and a cultural expansion for students who attend A&T and the surrounding community.

DST's Next Top Model

Each year the devastating diva's of the Alpha Mu chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority Inc., hold their annual A&T's Next Top Model competition. This year's competition featured six young, ambitious women, ready to take on the challenge.

The show took place in stallings ballroom located in the memorial student union. As students filled every seat available, the show began with the ladies doing a dance number followed by their individual introductions.

"I look forward to coming to the show every year," stated junior psychology major Marcia Rodriguez. "You can tell the ladies put a lot of effort into the show, and the competition is fierce."

The theme of this year's competition was "the Amazing World of Disney." In each category, the contestants had to model an original piece that expressed their personality. A few of the categories were "Disney After Dark" and Fairytale Dreams."

After each category, one of the ladies was unfortunately cut from the competition. After six rounds of strutting down the runway, Tiffany Patrick, a psychology major from Kinston, NC, was crowned the winner.

Every year the delta's continue to entertain the student body," stated junior education major Samuel Boon. "I cant wait to see who all will compete next year."

North Carolina A&T's Flag Football team won their second championship in a row during this past school year. Captain of the team and grad student of A&T, Rashad Richardson, along with the rest of his team mates are nothing short of proud when it comes to wearing their championship rings. A&T's Finest is a name that fits perfectly with this team. Richardson took a few moments of his time to sit with me provide a behind-the-scenes look into this award-winning team.

Q: How often does the team practice?

A: "We practice 2-3 times a week, and we have training camp over the summer. We also do what we call the Blue/White Scrimage, which is when we split the team into subdivisions and play against each other. These types of excersies are what gives us an advantage against other teams."

Q: What do you think the team's biggest strength is?

A: "Our biggest strength definitely has to be our athleticism. The speed and agility the team has definitely makes us stronger. But more importantly, the family atmosphere we create really helps. Everybody on the team is a like a brother, and we all come to win."

Q: How did you become a member of the team?

A: "When I first graduated from high school, I signed with Georgia Tech, but I ended up coming to A&T instead. I played for the football team at A&T, but I had to take some time off for surgery. Once I had fully recooperated, I was stronger, bigger, and faster, but I didnt want to play for the new coaches A&T hired in 2007. It was at this time that coach Rob McNair took me under his wings and I've been with A&T's Finest ever since."

Q:How long do you plan on staying with the team?

A: "I plan on working with the team until I finish grad school, then I would love to play for the CFL(Canadian Football League). After I finally finish playing ball I want to persue a doctorate in Electrical and Nuclear Engineering."

Q: What is one thing that everyone on the team, including yourself, is looking forward to for next year?

A: "Another victory...a 3-peat."

ARTS Finest

Capture Ward

Couture Productions is an entertainment organization on the campus of North Carolina A&T that specializes in stylish presentations and innovative performances. Couture has been entertaining audiences of all types for over a decade now and has won numerous competitions and awards.

Couture Word is one of the entertainment sectors within the organization that houses singers, poets, rappers, musicians, comedians, actors, and writers. Couture Word is known for their creativity and originality. Every show that Couture Word puts on has a packed out audience. Over the years Couture Word has flourished and grown and particularly within the last two years, Couture Word has established a major presence here on campus. Couture Word has their original shows that they do every semester, however, various organizations across campus and throughout the city of Greensboro call on Couture Word for entertainment.

Couture Word Coordinator's Brandon Brodington and Jason Cameron have been working extremely hard during what may be considered a very crucial moment for Couture Word. "I feel like Word has been stagnant for years now and it's time for us to take things to the next level," stated Cameron. "Word coordinators in the past have done what they could, but now the success or failure of this sector lies in my hands, and I don't plan on failing by any means. The word coordinators in the past really instilled within me the tools necessary to ensure that Couture Word would continue to flourish."

Since Cameron has been coordinator, Couture Word has established a few annual shows such as: "the Real World, Couture Word", "Word-n-Love", "Word-n-Worship", "Pro's vs. Joe's Poetry Competition, and "the Couture Awards." All of these events really displayed incredible talent and really gave the campus an excellent view of what Couture Word was made of.

"I love coming out to a Couture Word event," said junior journalism and mass communications major Bryley Simmons. "Couture Word is so talented and diverse and they really know how to entertain a crowd."

Freshmen animal science major Timothy Exum served as Mr. Freshmen and was a dedicated member of Couture Word this year. "I think that Couture Word really stepped out this year and gave the campus what they've been waiting for," said Exum. "I'm just excited to see what we come up with next." Exum is now one of the Word Coordinators for next year and has already started planning new and more creative performances for next semester. Cameron, now President over Couture Productions, still plans to work closely with the new coordinator's of Word to make sure that they continue to provide the very best entertainment possible.

Travis Jackson is a senior public relations major from Charlotte, NC. During his tenure at North Carolina A&T State University Mr. Jackson created his very own business, titled "HBCU Pride Nation LLC." A&T promotes entrepreneurship amongst each and every student and Mr. Jackson answered the call of duty and I was able to sit down with him and ask him a few questions about his business and how it all came about.

Q: How did you come up with your company and where did you get the name?

A: "I created a twitter name called HBCUPrideNation and I was using it to promote events on campus. One thing led to another, and the name became a business. There are eight people in all that are members of my company, all of whom are students or alumni of an HBCU."

Q: When did your company first start?

A: "I first officially started in July 2010 on twitter. Since then things have really taken off and I feel as if I'm living a dream. Now other school's send us information to post and promote."

Q: Where do you hope to see your business within the next 5-10 years?

A: "Within the next 5-10 years I hope to have a headquarters in Charlotte, Atlanta, and DC. I also hope to have accessories and apparell available in stores across the nation, a television show, and regular HBCU pride nation tours all around the country."

Q: What type of resources do you think you need to keep your company alive and to ensure you make your dreams a reality within the next 5-10 years?

A: "I really just need the continued support of all my fellow aggies, students, faculty, staff, and alumni. We need to keep HBCU's relevant and continue to network and support one another in our personal professional endeavors. Also, financial support is always a plus. I look forward to my business growing and becoming an intricate part of the HBCU experience."

Johnny Jackson

Erny Jackson and Eric Giles are a sophomore and junior music major duo that love to play the saxophone.

Q: How long have you guys played the sax?

A: Jackson - "I've been playing since I was 10-years-old."

Giles - "I've been playing since I was 11."

Q: What organizations do you play for at A&T?

A: Jackson - "I only play for the Jazz Ensemble."

Giles - "Currently I play for the Jazz Ensemble but I've played for the marching band during my first two years here at A&T."

Q: What made you want to be members of the Jazz Ensemble?

A: Jackson - "I wanted to become a better player, and I feel as an HBCU's Jazz Ensemble would be the ideal place to learn being that our people are the one's who originated this music."

Giles - "I saw a clip online for a spring tour that the Jazz Ensemble did and ever since I saw that video I've wanted to become a part of that organization."

Q: Who would you say has inspired you the most to play music?

A: Jackson - The person who has inspired me the most to want to be a musician is my grandfather."

Giles - "In the sixth grade I heard Charlie Parker. It was unlike anything I've ever heard and it sparked a curiosity for the sax. I had convinced my dad to get me a sax and he later became my true inspiration behind my love for music."

Wayne Kimball, Jr. is a senior Civil and Biological Engineering major from Roanoke Rapids, NC. He is a USDA 1890 Scholar and is a third year mentor in the University Honors Program.

Wayne currently serves as President of the NC A&T Student Government Association, and formerly served as President of the Sophomore and Junior Class. He also serves as Chair of the Council of Student Body Presidents for the UNC Association of Student Governments.

He is an active member of the National Society of Black Engineers and is a member of the Beta Epsilon Chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity Incorporated. Wayne has been named 2010 National Outstanding College Brother of the Year. Additionally, he has received a host of awards and recognitions on all levels for his outstanding scholastic achievements, leadership and oratorical skills.

He has worked as an intern for the NC Department of Transportation and the Ohio Department of Transportation. Wayne is currently employed as a Civil Engineer Intern with the United States Forest Service. Wayne is the Chief Executive Officer (CEO) of Dow Kimball Enterprise, a management and strategic development firm, and is the Founder of Wayne Kimball, Jr. International.

I had the liberty of sitting down with our president and ask him a few questions about his achievements and future life goals.

Q: What made you want to run for SGA president?

A: "Well, I've been a member of SGA since my freshmen year, so as I approached my senior year, I knew I had to end it out right. I saw my university going through change. New chancellor's, new buildings. NC A&T was making major progression, and I wanted to be a part of that forward movement."

Q: What is the most memorable moment you had during your presidency?

A: "The most memorable moment I had during my presidency was being the first student/sga president to be the key note speaker at the A&T Four Sit-In breakfast. It was an extremely humbling experience to be a part of such a remarkable occasion."

Q: Each year the SGA e-board is named after the residing president. Why didn't this year's e-board continue in that tradition, and where did you find the name "Sankofa?"

A: "When the 2010-2011 e-board first came together, it was a mutual understanding amongst us all that humility was the first thing on our minds. It's not about Wayne Kimball, or just having SGA positions; but it's about all of the 10,700 students that attend our university. Keeping that in mind, I wanted to make sure I left a lasting mark on the university once I graduated. I took a trip to Africa and while I was there I heard the word "sankofa." Sankofa, from the Acan language, means to go back to your roots, while progressively moving forward and creating change. I knew that sankofa would be the perfect name for our e-board because it embodied everything we stood for. NC A&T is known around the world for our rich history and legacy, and the sankofa administration felt an obligation to build upon that history and continue in the great tradition of achieving great goals in everything that we do."

Sinfonia was born on October 6, 1898 at the New England Conservatory in Boston, Mass. when a group of thirteen young men under the guidance of Ossian Everett Mills met "to consider the social life of the young men students of that institution" and "to devise ways and means by which it might be improved." Mills, bursar of the Conservatory, sought to create an Order in which men with a shared love of music could develop the virtues of manhood in themselves and in their fellows.

Sinfonia became a national fraternity on October 6, 1900, with the admission of a group of men at the Broad Street Conservatory in Philadelphia. Since that time Sinfonia has grown into the largest music fraternity in the world, with more than 150,000 initiates, and chapters on over 200 college and university campuses across the nation.

The Object of this Fraternity shall be for the development of the best and truest fraternal spirit; the mutual welfare and brotherhood of musical students; the advancement of music in America and a loyalty to the Alma Mater.

The Iota Beta Chapter of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia Fraternity of America Inc. was founded on April 16, 1972. The Chapter was rechartered this school year after being inactive for over a decade. Many members were overwhelmed with happiness now that the chapter is back active. Alumni and Sinfonians from all over were in attendance at the Iota Beta Chapters' probate this year. Graduating senior and the deuce of the 2011 line, Arturo Cummings said, "to finally be back on the yard is like a whiff of fresh air."

Arvington West

Mrington West is a junior visual media and design major from Raleigh, NC. Mr. West was given the opportunity to open his own art exhibit on the campus of A&T and the exhibit featured his work as well as the work of 13 other artists from A&T, UNCG, and Elon University. The name of the exhibit was, "Hello, My Name is" and after a one-time viewing in the Memorial Student Union, the exhibit was moved to Frasier Hall and remained on display for a few weeks.

Q: How did you feel when you heard the news that your work could be displayed in an art exhibit on campus?

A: "Well, I've always wanted to do my own show, so when the opportunity came about, I took it."

Q: How long have you been drawing and what role does art play in your life?

A: "I've been drawing all my life; however, I didn't begin story telling until I was 10-years-old."

Q: What is your definition of "story telling?"

A: "When we were all small children, we were constantly read stories to put us to bed, or stories from Disney movies and other childhood activities; but, I never really enjoyed those stories, so I wanted to create my own. People always considered me to be a weird person and I would have to agree. I use my weird personality to fuel my art; and that weirdness is what fuels my love for story telling."

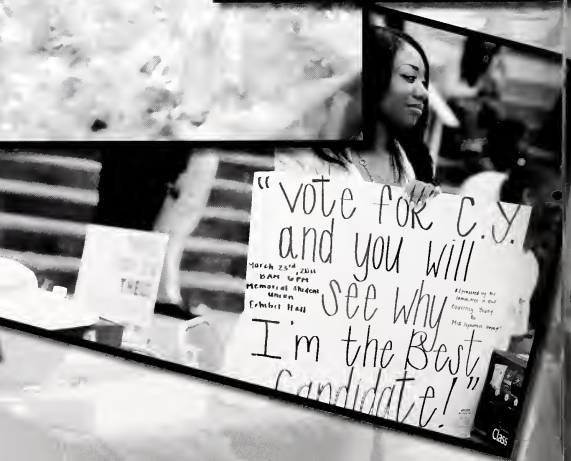

Q: What is the one thing you want people to take away from viewing your artwork?

A: "I want them to leave with a message. I want my art work to make individuals think critically and gain something from my artwork. I want to be known as an artist who tried his best to spread happiness. I really want my work to change the world."

SGA Elections

SGA

The Student Government Association holds their spring elections in front of the memorial student union every year. This year, a new kind of atmosphere settled over the crowd as students cheered and supported the different candidates. We took the time to interview random students and ask them how they felt about this year's elections. Here are some of the pro's and con's they shared with us.

Donald Griswell
Sophomore.Elizabeth City, NC

- Pro's:
- giggie Pride :every one coming together:online voting helps the people who aren't comfortable with the hype of A&T to vote within their comfort zone
 - a lot of respect between candidates
- Con's:
- a lot of petty notions towards other competitors coming from supporters
 - online voting: it isn't traditional takes away from what A&T is all about which is coming together as one
 - giggie pride is dying a little, but we still have a lot of spirit and support

Carl Funny
Sophomore.Charlotte, NC

- Pro's:
- school unity a lot of participation, noise, and support online voting is easier
- Con's:
- A&T's spirit is slowly dying online voting is bringing the numbers down

Christian Robinson
Junior, Raleigh, NC

- Pro's:
- campus leadership is still alive, students are still concerned about the progression of the campus.
- Con's:
- a lot of flaws in the election process
 - the system is very unclear which is leading to unnecessary disqualifications
 - all of these flaws might keep people from running in the future.
 - Not enough concern for the future of the university, which is why we have so many gaps on the ballot
 - It's hard to compete with other universities and institutions because the drive and concern is down
 - we need to address problems from the past and attempt to fix them so that we can move forward as a university
 - this is a popularity contest, people with Greek letters have a better chance.

Usually, election day has an extremely hype atmosphere and many of the candidates have various food items their table such as burgers, chicken, steak, and cupcakes. This year the atmosphere was very plain and not many candidates had food. Nevertheless, the student body elected the best candidates for the right position and everyone looks forward to seeing what changes will be made for next year's election process.

Aggies - n - Style

Many may argue differently, but college is one of the many places individuals truly learn to express themselves and explore what truly makes them unique. The students picked to be in our "Aggies-n-Style" feature were students who exemplified self-expression and a unique sense of style everyday. These students define their own style and they do not follow the trends and fashions of everyone else. After each of our stylish aggies finished their own personal photo shoot, I asked them a few questions so we could go a little deeper into the creative minds of these fashion-forward aggies.

What inspires the way you express yourself?

Chris McLaughlin - "Colors are my main way of expression. I love exotic colors because they blend well with my skin tone and allow my style to be loud, yet stylish."

Skyy Williams - "I would have to say music inspires the way I express myself."

Wonma Wo Agbaza - "I just like to naturally express myself. It's about being genuine and staying true to who you are."

How would you describe your style?

Dre'Sean Williams - "Neo Warhol."

Minica Steele - "I would describe my style as free-spirited."

Skyy Williams - "Very vintage with a dash of randomness."

Q: What makes your style unique from everyone else?

A: Shira (Norma Jean Benson) - "I love to sew. Knowing how to sew gives you insight on so many things you can do with clothes. A little snip here and a little thread there could make all the difference in an outfit."

A: Dre'Sean Williams - "I'm not afraid to push the limits of fashion."

A: Minica Steele - "I'm not afraid to try something different. I don't care what people have to say and I don't like to match."

A: Skyy Williams - "I'm daring enough to try different looks that most people could never pull off. My style really fits my personality because I'm a very random, different person and I like to wear very random, different things."

A: Wonma Wo Agbaza - "I wear whatever I feel like wearing."

Aggies

Q: What is your favorite place to shop?

A: Shira (Norma Jean Benson) - "I love shopping online and thrift shopping! Pavoni NYC, Urban Outfitters, and American Apparel are amazing sites. My number one place to thrift is Standout Vintage!!!! and its located right here in Greensboro!"

A: Chris McLaughlin - "Urban Outfitters."

A: Darin Williams - "Vintage stores."

A: DreSean Williams - "www.topman.com"

Q: How many items of clothing do you own?

A: Wonma Wo Agbaza - "I cant give an exact estimate, but I can tell you that I can go at least two months without washing clothes."

A: Shira (Norma Jean Benson) - "That's like asking me how many beans are in a random size jar; I honestly don't know. It would take me days to go through my closet and count every single item of clothing."

A: Minica Steele - "I would say it's a pretty outrageous amount,"

Egypt

Egypt, the most populous country in the Arab world, erupted in mass protests in January 2011, as the revolution in Tunisia inflamed decades worth of smoldering grievances against the heavy-handed rule of President Hosni Mubarak. After 18 days of angry protests and after losing of the support of the military and the United States, Mr. Mubarak resigned on Feb. 11, ending 30 years of autocratic rule. The military stepped forward and took power. It quickly suspended unpopular provisions of the constitution, even while cracking down on continuing demonstrations. On March 19, a set of constitutional amendments that pave the way for elections was overwhelmingly approved in a referendum that drew record numbers of voters.

Earthquake, Tsunami, and Nuclear Crisis

On March 11, 2011, an earthquake struck off the coast of Japan, churning up a devastating tsunami that swept over cities and farmland in the northern part of the country and set off warnings as far away the west coast of the United States and South America. Recorded as 9.0 on the Richter scale, it was the most powerful quake ever to hit the country. As the nation struggled with a rescue effort, it also faced the worst nuclear emergency since Chernobyl; explosions and leaks of radioactive gas took place in three reactors at the Fukushima Daiichi Nuclear Power Station that suffered partial meltdowns, while spent fuel rods at another reactor overheated and caught fire, releasing radioactive material directly into the atmosphere. Japanese officials turned to increasingly desperate measures, as traces of radiation were found in Tokyo's water and in water pouring from the reactors into the ocean.

As of April 7, the official death toll had been raised to 12,600, and more than 14,700 people were listed as missing, although there may be some overlap between the two groups. The final toll is expected to reach nearly 20,000. More than 160,000 people remained housed in temporary shelters; tens of thousands of others evacuated their homes due to the nuclear crisis.

Don't Ask, Don't Tell Repealed

With a vote of 65-31 to repeal Don't Ask Don't Tell, the Senate lifted the iron curtain barring gay, lesbian, and bisexual service members from serving openly in the military on Saturday, Dec. 18. On Dec. 22, President Obama signed the bill, officially bringing the policy to a close.

The 17-year policy was a compromise resulting from President Clinton's 1993 attempt to remove the enduring ban on gays in the U.S. military. Until Dec. 22, the United States was the only member of NATO maintaining such a ban after the European Court of Human Rights declared it unlawful in the UK.

Not only did the senatorial vote mark a historic moment, equated by supporters with the end of racial segregation in the military, but allowed Obama to fulfill the pledge he made during his presidential campaign to reverse the ban. Prior to the vote, a comprehensive review, conducted by the Pentagon barely saw open LGBT service as threatening to military efficiency despite concerns voiced by a few combat units and the Marine Corps.

iPhone available to Verizon Customers

After much anticipation, the Apple iPhone finally became available to Verizon Wireless customers on February 11, 2011.

PROS FOR VERIZON

1. No dropped calls.
2. A wider coverage area than AT&T.
3. Demonstratably clearer voice quality, even when an AT&T phone is used on other side. This is amazing, too. The voice quality is just much better with EVERY call.
4. Data worked more places. It was interesting, I pulled out my Verizon phone and it had a great data signal and worked fine.
5. Wifi hotspot out of the box.

AT&T PROS

1. You can use Voice and Data at same time on AT&T. But you'll have to decide for yourself which is more important, great voice quality and no dropped calls or the ability to use voice and data together.
2. International usage.
3. Data speed. Yes, overall, AT&T is faster, but only in some spots with strong AT&T signals.

Apple unveils thinner, faster, camera-packing iPad 2

By Ben Patterson, Yahoo News – Wed Mar 2, 1:23 pm ET

A year after revitalizing the once-sleepy, now red-hot tablet market with the original iPad, Apple surprised absolutely no one Wednesday by taking the wrapper off a slimmer, trimmer version of the wildly popular slate, complete with a front-facing camera for video chat (finally!) and a souped-up processor.

The new iPad 2 took the spotlight during a press event at San Francisco's Yerba Buena Center for the Arts, with none other than Apple CEO Steve Jobs—who is still on medical leave, mind you ("he looks good," Engadget noted on its live blog)—taking the stage to unveil the much-anticipated follow-up to the best-selling original.

The "dramatically faster" iPad 2 boasts a dual-core A5 "system on a chip" processor under the hood, said Jobs, good for twice the CPU power and nine times the graphics performance of the original while maintaining the same 10-hour battery life.

(Related: How the iPad 2 stacks up against the competition)

Also new: dual cameras (at last), including a front-facing camera for VGA-quality video chat, while the rear camera will be good for 720p video capture. (Apple hasn't listed specific megapixel counts for the iPad 2's cameras yet.)

As predicted, the 9.7-inch display on the iPad 2 has the same resolution as that on the original: 1,024 by 768, to be exact, disappointing news for anyone hoping that the new iPad would boast an improved "retina"-style display.

World of Music

Music has undoubtedly made a tremendous come back over the past two years. The music industry as a whole allowed music to slip into a mundane tune of simplicity and repetitiveness. Nevertheless, a faithful few finally decided to break the cycle of mediocrity and a music revolution took the past two years by storm. Artists like Lady GaGa, Beyonce, Kanye West, Nicki Minaj, Chris Brown and many more ventured outside the traditional box of creativity and created a sound all their own. Many fans from across the world are pleased to see their favorite artist hitting the studio's and bringing back the good music that we all love to hear. Even award shows have captured our attention yet again with outstanding performances and a new age of music artist. It seems as if the music industry is heading into a new direction and people all around the world are pleased with this maturation of music.

On Friday, 29 April 2011, Prince William, Duke of Cambridge married Catherine Middleton at Westminster Abbey, at 11:00 am. William, who is second in the line of succession to Elizabeth II, first met Middleton in 2001, while both were students at the University of St Andrews. Their engagement, which began on 20 October 2010, was announced on 16 November 2010.

The build up to the wedding and the occasion itself attracted much media attention, with the service broadcast live around the world, and with it being compared and contrasted in many ways to the last high profile British Royal wedding, the 1981 marriage of William's parents, Prince Charles and Lady Diana Spencer. Much of the attention focussed on Middleton's status as a commoner (i.e. not of Royal blood or a part of the aristocracy), marrying into royalty. Hours before the service, William was granted the titles of the Duke of Cambridge, Earl of Strathearn, and Baron Carrickfergus by the Queen. Upon her marriage, Middleton therefore became Her Royal Highness Princess William Arthur Philip Louis, Duchess of Cambridge, Countess of Strathearn, Baroness Carrickfergus, but is not styled as 'Princess Catherine'.

As William was not the immediate heir to the throne, the wedding was not a full state occasion, with many details left to the couple themselves to decide, such as much of the the guest list of about 1,900. It was however a public holiday in Britain, and featured many ceremonial aspects including use of the state carriages and roles for the Foot Guards and Household Cavalry. It was attended by most of the British Royal Family as well as many foreign royals and diplomats, as well as the couple's chosen personal guests.

Middleton wore a white dress with a 270 centimetres (110 in) train, by English designer Sarah Burton, as well as a tiara lent to her by the Queen. William, commissioned as a Royal Navy Lieutenant, Army Captain and Air Force Flight Lieutenant, chose instead to wear the uniform of his honorary rank of Colonel of the Regiment, Irish Guards. William's best man was his brother, Prince Harry, while the bride's sister Pippa acted as her maid of honour. The Dean of Westminster officiated most of the service, with the Archbishop of Canterbury conducting the marriage ceremony itself and the Bishop of London giving the sermon. A reading was also given by the bride's brother, James. After the ceremony, the newly married couple travelled in a procession to Buckingham Palace for the traditional appearance on the balcony and by past, before crowds assembled in The Mall.

Royal wedding coverage: Prince William and Kate Middleton's big day captivates every major network

BY RICHARD HUFF, DAILY NEWS TV EDITOR
Friday, April 29th 2011, 10:28 AM hair up, or hair down, the anchors on CNN were wondering, moments before Kate Middleton emerged on camera for the first time Friday morning. It was early, way early for Americans to be up and watching TV, let alone a wedding on the other side of the pond, but there we were, hanging on every moment. "We were told it would be hair down, I don't know why we even know that," CNN's Anderson Cooper said.

He was right.

Why would anyone know that, or care? But for several hours Friday morning, they did, and viewers had few other options but the wedding if they turned their TVs on. It was all Royal Wedding, all the time, sans for a few channels offering infomercials and old movies.

Coverage began overnight on some networks, with others picking up full-on at 4 a.m. as the Royals began the first Wedding of the Century.

Over the course of multiple hours, we learned about Royal traditions, music, dress choices and more.

The coverage rivaled the best of Super Bowl Sunday, when networks fill hours with fluff leading up to the game itself.

Here, the game was the wedding, and this cute young couple was the Super Bowl.

Barbara Walters, working ABC's coverage, said, "Maybe this is the year of the commoners," after noting even the Prince of Denmark was married to, cecads, a marketing executive.

"We're going to see Kate for a nanosecond as she enters Westminster Abbey," Katie Couric said on CBS.

Every mother dreams of this," Robin Roberts said on ABC. "I think the thing we need to do is we have to strip away all of this —this is a wedding."

Well, sort of. If they stripped away everything, no one would watch any old wedding.

Even Piers Morgan, a steady hand during CNN's coverage, noted he was excited about the dress.

"She looks utterly radiant," he said as she got into the car to head to the Abbey.

Given the extent of the coverage, spanning from CBS, to Univision, and many others in between, it's no wonder that even second, or third-rate experts, were dragged into the coverage.

Once the ceremony began in earnest, most of the networks let the event carry the moment.

After the ceremony, and the kiss - Oh, the Kiss, also analyzed to death —key parts were replayed, and discussed, again.

"The kisses are coming up," Walters said on ABC, as they were planning to rerun it.

It appears not everyone was impressed with the double kiss," David Muir said on ABC.

"It was a very different feeling than what we felt with Princess Diana and Prince Charles, which was very stiff," Fox News' Martha MacCallum said. "This was Royal in really the best way."

CNN's Morgan noted it was a good day in London, a good day for Royals and for the married couple.

"Kate Middleton, we have a new star," Morgan said.

"She looked like a movie star, an 'Officer and a Gentleman' character," Morgan noted, and she looked like one of the most beautiful brides ever."

Oh, yes, and that was probably because her hair was, indeed, down.

5 Outrageous Moments of the 2011 Grammy Awards

1. Gwyneth & Cee Lo Green Rock Out

Perhaps the BEST performance of the night was Cee Lo Green and Gwyneth Paltrow's rendition of "Forget You." While Cee Lo was dressed in an outrageous peacock costume, GOOP sexed it up in a tight, black deep V-neck jumpsuit, hot pink feather earrings and sky-high multicolored heels. There were puppets all over the stage, but all eyes were on Gwyneth.

2. Christina FAILS Again

OK, the diva may have sang her tribute to Aretha Franklin without a hitch (or forgetting the lyrics), but Christina Aguilera failed yet again when she FELL just as the song was ending.

3. Seth Rogen Disses Miley

Miley Cyrus just can't catch a break. She became the butt of a joke when Seth Rogen took the stage to introduce performers, Eminem and Rihanna. "I've seen things I've never seen before. I heard things I've never heard before," said the funnyman. "And that wasn't even watching the show. That was just backstage getting high with Miley Cyrus." Nailed it!

4. Bieber Fever Ends

Beiber fans were outraged when the teen singing sensation DID NOT take home the Grammy for Best New Artist. Instead, the award went to newcomer, Esperanza Spalding, which left everyone wondering. "Um, who is that?"

5. Rihanna!

Hot Hot HOT! Rihanna totally stole the show with her performances and her multiple costume changes. She looked incredible all night -- from her glam red hair to her gorgeous makeup to her killer shoes. Last night was Rihanna's night!

Best new artist, not Bieber?!

In one of the bigger surprises so far of this year's Grammy Awards, Esperanza Spalding won the best new artist award, beating out better known names Justin Bieber, Drake, Florence + The Machine and Mumford and Sons.

This night, Spalding – a 26-year-old jazz performer and bassist whose second solo album, "Chamber Music Society," was released last year, and who is not the subject of a #1 movie currently playing in a multiplex near you – beat out the Biebs. If you're a serious music (especially jazz) fan, this was a moment in which integrity triumphed over mass popularity. If you're a Bieber driver, this was an injustice of the highest order, as underscored by the predictable explosion of "Who the [bleep] is Esperanza Spalding and who does she think she is?" tweets that immediately dominated Twitter.

A star is hatched!

Lady Gaga burst out of a giant egg on Grammys stage after her dramatic red carpet entrance.

By Mira Johnson and Elle Genower, dailymail.co, 14th February 2011

- "Stage emerged after being in 'incubation'"
- She spent three hours inside the egg getting into character
- Star wins three gongs, including best pop vocal album

The pop singer already made one of her most bizarre red carpet entrances yet as she arrived at the Grammys concealed in a giant egg.

And Lady Gaga made sure she 'hatched' in a spectacular way for her performance at last night's live show.

The 24-year-old outrageous singer emerged from the glowing egg to launch into a spectacular version of her latest single Born This Way.

How Fans Brought The Game Back to BET

January 11, 2011 05:30 PM

In an unprecedented move, BET has resurrected the popular and formerly canceled sitcom, The Game, and debuts its fourth season. Creator and executive producer Mara Brock Akil, and husband Salim Akil, who also directs and writes for the show owe it all to the fans.

"We're extremely excited... Mara always says how our other partner is the fans," states Akil. He also pointed out that the black community's been criticized for not using their voice to affect change in the media and states, "This time, they did." When it comes to the responsibility of BET to provide programming that viewers are asking for Akil adds, "They have." Creator Brock Akil shares her excitement about the resurgence of the show and states, "It's a big moment for us, it's a big moment for BET and for the empowerment of the fans. They're the ones who allowed us to stay on as long as we did on the CW." Brock Akil tells of how the fans "galvanized" when The Game was coming to an end on the CW and looked to BET and asked, "What are you going to do?" Well BET responded and took over the production of the series and Brock Akil hopes this will allow more quality black shows to have a home on the network. Akil agrees and wants to see a broad range of programming that resonates within the black community.

The fans have spoken and fortunately BET has listened. This season of The Game, with its cast of characters who engage in career threatening affairs, reality show shenanigans, paternity tests and "cougar" romances will not only entertain, but be a testament that the black community does in fact have a voice and that voice has the power to affect change. Game on!

The high cost of celebrities gone wild

When CBS and Warner Bros. shut down the television series "Two and a Half Men" on Feb. 24 after actor Charlie Sheen launched a rant against the show's producer that some interpreted as anti-Semitic (a charge Sheen has denied in interviews), executives involved with the top-rated sitcom rushed to their calculators to tally the damage.

There are plenty of losses to go around. First, Sheen stands to lose his roughly $2 million-per-show salary. The star's partying had already cost the show's almost-300-member crew four weeks of lost work while he was in rehab. By canceling the final four episodes of the season, Warner Bros. says it will have only 16 to sell this year in the lucrative rerun market, rather than the 24 it had planned. That will lower Warner's expected revenue by $12 million, according to a person familiar with the show's finances. Warner Bros. spokesman Paul McGuire declined comment. Sheen in television interviews has threatened to sue Warner and CBS over his last pay.

While Sheen aired his grievances in interviews with celebrity website TMZ and radio host Alex Jones, actress Lindsay Lohan was in a Los Angeles courtroom dealing with her latest legal difficulty: the alleged theft of a $2,500 necklace. Also on TMZ's site recently: Rocker Vince Neil's DUI arrest in Las Vegas and a supposed brawl involving the cast of Bravo's hit series, "The Real Housewives" of New Jersey.

SUPER BOWL XLV

Packers win Superbowl XLV

QB Rodgers threw three touchdown passes to get MVP honors and to lead the Packers to a Super Bowl victory. After a fast start building a 21-3 lead in the first half, the Packers offense imploded briefly against a tough Steelers defense allowing the Steelers back in the game at 28-25 late in the 4th quarter. The defense made the big plays creating 3 turnovers that the offense converted into 3 touchdowns for the final score 31-25. The biggest play was by LB Bishop who opened the fourth quarter by recovering a fumble jarred loose by LB Matthews from RB Mendenhall in Packer territory. Then, Rodgers led two fourth-quarter scoring drives: an 8-yard touchdown by WR Jennings and a field goal by K Crosby. These were game-preserving drives giving some breathing room for the defense. The Steelers had a final chance to score a touchdown to win, down by six points with two minutes left, but the defense held for the victory 31-25.

Seating Causes Problems in Dallas

By JAIME ARON, AP Pro Football Writer Sun Feb 6, 6:29 pm ET ARLINGTON, Texas — Jerry Jones may have tried a little too hard to break the Super Bowl attendance record.

About 1,250 fans were displaced Sunday because their temporary seats were deemed unsafe —400 who were not allowed inside, and 850 who were relocated elsewhere in the stadium.

The move angered fans.

"Jerry sold tickets he didn't own," said Glen Long, a Steelers fan from Baltimore. "They call that fraud anywhere in the world."

The NFL said the people relocated were put in "similar or better seats." Those turned away will be given a refund of triple the face value, which ranged from $600 to $1,200, but that might not be enough for folks who paid much more to scalpers, not to mention travel and hotel costs.

Christina Aguilera Fumbles Lyrics During National Anthem at Super Bowl

Sun., Feb. 6, 2011 10:15 PM PST by Erik Pedersen, E Online

Words fail us.

As apparently they did Christina Aguilera, who followed Glee's Lea Michele's "America the Beautiful" by muffing the words to "The Star Spangled Banner" before the biggest audience in the world big game.

The offense? She replaced "o'er the ramparts we watched" with "what so proudly we watched," which you might have missed unless you were checking your Twitter account or are really good with the lyrics.

To be fair, it's a stressful gig, a difficult song and, frankly, hard to tell exactly what the heck she was singing in some of the showier parts, but let's cut her some slack, huh? At least it was better than Roseanne's back in the day, right?

The singer released a statement afterward, which said: "I can only hope that everyone could feel my love for this country and that the true spirit of its anthem still came through."

Carmelo Anthony Traded To New York Knicks

02/21/11 10:34 PM

Carmelo Anthony is no longer a Denver Nugget.

The Denver Post reported Monday night that Anthony was traded to the New York Knicks in a blockbuster deal.

Denver will reportedly send Anthony, Chauncey Billups, Shelden Williams, Anthony Carter and Renaldo Balkman to New York.

The Nuggets get Raymond Felton, Danilo Gallinari, Timofey Mozgov, Wilson Chandler, New York's 2014 first-round draft pick, Golden State's 2012 second-round pick and 2013 second-round pick along with $3 million in cash.

"I'm glad its over," Nuggets coach George Karl said. "I'm glad it's an opportunity to reinvent. I think everybody handled it as classy as you could handle it. There's some sadness to it, there always will be."

According to ESPN's Chris Broussard, Minnesota is also involved in the deal. The Timberwolves will receive Anthony Randolph and Eddy Curry from New York. The Knicks will get guard Corey Brewer.

Denver selected Anthony with the third overall pick in the 2003 NBA draft. He has averaged 24.8 points and 6.3 rebounds per game over his first seven seasons.

LeBron says he'll sign with Miami Heat

Jul 9, 2010 11:50 AM ET

LeBron James walked away from the comforts of home to chase an NBA championship.

Perhaps the most hysterically-hyped free agent in sports history, James announced Thursday night on national television that he plans to leave Cleveland to join the Miami Heat for a chance to play with Olympic teammates Dwyane Wade and Chris Bosh.

It's a power trio that could dominate the league for years to come.

"I can't say it was always in my plans, because I never thought it was possible," said James, who wrestled with his decision for weeks. "But the things that the Miami Heat franchise have done, to free up cap space and be able to put themselves in a position this summer to have all three of us, it was hard to turn down.

"Those are two great players, two of the greatest players that we have in this game today."

FOX Sports Radio's Stephen A. Smith was the first to report that James, Wade and Bosh would end up in Miami. He made the prediction nearly a week ago, citing several sources.

Ending weeks of round-the-clock speculation, the two-time NBA most valuable player said he was uncertain until the eleventh hour before deciding that the only way he could fulfill his dreams of winning multiple championships was to leave his home state and a city that hasn't sprayed championship champagne in 46 years.

"It's going to give me the best opportunity to win," James said. "We're going to be a real good team."

That's not what Cleveland wanted to hear.

Fans poured out of the same downtown bars and restaurants that have thrived with James around in frustration moments after the announcement. A few set fire to his No. 23 jersey while others threw rocks at the 10-story-tall billboard featuring James with his head tossed back and arms pointing skyward.

"We Are All Witnesses," the mural says.

This was something Cleveland never thought it would see.
